

Tiffany J. Cresswell-Yeager, Ph.D.

Dr. Tiffany J. Cresswell-Yeager is the Director of Student and Enrollment Services at Penn State Lehigh Valley. In her current role, she supervises several departments including Admissions, Student Activities, Personal Counseling, Health Services, Athletics, Recreation and Fitness, Student Aid, and the Office of Student Conduct. In addition, Tiffany is an instructor for the first-year experience course, “Intercultural Community Building” aimed at supporting the first-year students as they transition to from high school to college. Tiffany has also taught courses in organizational communication, work-life balance, and leadership development. She has conducted research about the first-year experience, first-generation college students and college choice. She has presented her research at the National Conference for the First Year Experience and the National Conference for Students in Transition.

Tiffany earned her Ph.D. in sociology from the Indiana University of Pennsylvania and she is a graduate of the Pennsylvania State University with a bachelor’s degree in journalism and a master’s degree in training and development.

In addition to her professional experience, Tiffany has been coaching track and field, working specifically with the junior high program, at Blue Mountain High School since 2002. She enjoys crossfit, weightlifting and cycling to stay healthy.