

Teresa Wojcik

A Philadelphia native, Dr. Teresa G. Wojcik completed her Bachelor's Degree in secondary education at Temple University, her Master's Degree at Villanova University, and her Ph.D. at the Graduate School of Education at the University of Pennsylvania. Her doctoral research was supported by a U.S. Fulbright Grant for research in Poland, where she studied curriculum use by civics teachers using a program focused on active teaching methods.

Dr. Wojcik teaches in the Department of Education and Counseling at Villanova University and serves as the Coordinator of the Undergraduate Teacher Certification Program. She enjoys working with pre-service and in-service educators and teaches courses in the philosophy of education, methods of teaching, curriculum and assessment, and comparative education. Her research interests include the historical and philosophical foundations of education as well as Social Studies curriculum and pedagogy. She has a particular interest in international education and is engaged in educational endeavors and research abroad.