

Christopher S. Adams, Ed.D.

Chris is the Superintendent of Hempfield School District in Lancaster County. He began his career 33 years ago as junior-senior high school science teacher in northern New York. He has resided in Lancaster with his wife and two children since 1992. He worked in the Manheim Township School District for 15 years, serving as a middle school science teacher, high school assistant principal, and finally as the middle school principal. He joined Hempfield in 2007 as the high school principal before moving to the district office as the assistant superintendent for secondary education. He is completing his second year as superintendent and has been closely involved with the Open Campus PA consortium initiative between the Hempfield, Manheim Township, and Penn Manor school districts since its inception five years ago.
