

Damian Goodman

My name is Damian Goodman. I obtained a Bachelor's Degree in Education from Clemson University and a Master's Degree in Elementary Education from Kutztown University. I received my Administrative Certificate from Penn State University. I have been working in the Parkland School District for 14 years. Most of my time spent with the district was as a teacher. I taught at the elementary level in grades three, four, and five. I was heavily involved in integrating technology into the classroom. This allowed me to present at the Pete & C Conference in Hershey, PA in 2014. I discussed the effectiveness of a paperless classroom and the twenty-first century learner. It was not until recently, that I received my Administrative Certificate and was hired as the Dean of Students in 2015. One of my current duties is to use technology, to analyze data, to effectively drive instruction and decision making in the classroom. I am currently a part of the Parkland Ready 21 committee, which is looking for a data warehouse to streamline data, so teachers can make decisions for more student centered individualized instruction.
